Interest in More Beautiful Homes Draws Good Crowd.

A NEW COLOR SCHEME

Lecturer Tonight Will Show How Art and Comedy Mix; One Act But Many Scenes.

So eager were they to learn how to make their homes more beautiful and more comfortable places in which to live, that a goodly gathering of Tulsans braved the stinging cold last night to attend the Better Homes institute which is being conducted here this week by Rose Crane of the art institute of Chicago under the auspices of the Rusk Art club. Although the majority of the audience had been present at the opening lecture on Monday night, they found last night's demonstration equally interesting and instructive. It was the second of a series of three on home furnishing and decorating, but the demonstration was conducted by using new rugs, new drapery, new furniture, and a new color scheme.

Starting with the same beautiful painting which supplied the warmth and color for his first demonstration, the artist took the central role of his color scheme from the vivid blue of the canvas last night rather than the mullery tones used the night before. Continuing the idea of blue in his rug, tapestry chairs, and the figured cretonne draperies with a splash of gold from a vase of flowers and a shaft of light from an old rose lamp, to furnish contrast and life. Rose Crane demonstrated that wonderful pictures could be painted not alone with oils, but also with the utilities of life such as carpets, couches, tables and chairs.

Mrs. R. F. McArthur in introducing the lecturer last night, characterized her as "the ideal expression of what Rusk Art club stands for." She paid a tribute to the memory of Caroline Rose Webb, the founder and first president of the club, and said that the purpose of the club had broadened from that of the mere individual culture of its members, and that in conducting the Better Homes institute it had shown that the organization was now following the path of the community.

Mixing Comedy and Art. Tonight's Crane promises to provide that well mixed comedy which is the secret of her success. A comedy in one act and several scenes, in the support of her first demonstration of home decorating. Like the former lectures, it will be conducted in the high school auditorium at 8 o'clock. Tomorrow afternoon he will go to the Boston Avenue M. E. church, where he will give his lecture on home decorating, and on Monday night he will give a talk there on "From the Rusk Art Club to the Better Homes Institute." His lecture is "Gallery Talks on Paintings" and his lecture

Friday night on "Dollars and Sense to Your Town" will conclude the series.

TO BEGIN NEW ARMORY

Contractor Announces That Work on New Building Will Begin Immediately—Cost Nearly $4,000

Tulsa's national guard armory for which funds were raised several weeks ago is soon to be a reality. Contracts for the construction of the building were awarded to J. H. Healy, local contractor, yesterday and the building committee announced that ground would be broken for the structure immediately.

broken for the structure immediately on 8th street near Norfolk, directly opposite Central park. Two companies of infantry, one medical and one supply, company will be housed by the building which is to be 50 by 140 feet. Plans have been drawn by S. Humacher, A. Atkinson, architect, and not only provide for a comfortable and practical headquarters for the national guardmen, but will give the city another ornament as well. All of the $35,000 which the structure will cost has been raised by the armory committee composed of R. M. McFarlin, L. E. Abbott, P. A. Malloy, G. B. McCullough and Frank Haskell. Funds for furnishing the structure of the armory were raised through the medium of a street carnival put on by the local guardmen recently.
